

They understood the dangers of unrestricted power.....

The Creator Has Granted Sovereignty to the People

The people are the ultimate power in the United States by virtue of their natural right to arms, secured by the Second Amendment of the Bill of Rights. Their sovereignty can be retained only if the people prevent any infringements against their individual and collective right to keep and bear arms. All federal and state public officials are bound by an Oath to support and defend this right. They know the Bill of Rights cannot be repealed. They have been warned not to exceed the limits of power the people have delegated to them, lest they be guilty of treason.
